NEW WITNESS A GREAT FIND

Burch Plainly Agitated When Man Appears.

INFORMATION OF IMPORTANCE GAINED

Through Meeting in Prison at Los Angeles—Developments in Kennedy Murder Case.

Los Angeles, Aug 13.—Nervous and worn from a week's confinement in jail, Arthur C. Burch, of Evanston, Illinois, charged with the murder of J. Belton Kennedy, today was believed by officers to be near the point of breaking the haughty silence which he has maintained with uncanny fortitude since his arrest.

Late yesterday, for the first time, Burch winced, turned pale and apparently tried to shield his face when confronted by Charles Summar, the state's latest witness, whose testimony so far officials have guarded with extreme care.

The identity of this "mystery witness," whose visit to the county jail caused such a change in the demeanor of Burch, jointly indicted with Mrs Madelynne Obenchain in the Kennedy case, was learned early today. By actions rather than by words, District Attorney Thomas Lee Woolwine and his aide indicated that this new witness had been a "great find." Following the meeting between Burch and Summar in the county jail, the witness was taken to the district attorney's.

After a conference, the officers and Summar left the office, giving every indication that information of great importance had been imparted.

In a statement made public today, Woolwine announced his belief that the stock of a twelve-gauge, double-barreled shot-gun found in the sea at Santa Monica, was part of the weapon with which Kennedy was slain.

The district attorney is known to be in possession of a deposition made by Mrs. James M. Warren, wife of a Santa Barbara banker, who was a passenger on the train that brought Burch to Los Angeles. The deposition charges that Burch said:

"I'm going out to Los Angeles to see that a certain party treats a friend of mine right. If he doesn't, I'm going to get him."

Mrs. Obenchain, the other principal in the case, stoutly denied today, that she had told Deputy Sheriff J. B. Fox a new version of the shooting, to which she was the only witness. She also denied statements made public yesterday, that she was withholding vital information," attempting to shield someone."

Dramatic Incident.

The meeting between Burch and Summar was one of the most dramatic incidents so far in the developments of the case. Burch was sitting in a corner of the visitors' room when Summar entered. Recognition was apparently instantaneous. Burch's face became pale and he rose to his feet. "I don't see why I should let all these birds take a look at me!" he said, with an affected air of composure. Deputy Sheriff Bright led Summar to the spot where Burch was standing and requested him to remove the big colored glasses Burch has worn since he entered the prison. This Burch refused to do.

The officer, prisoner and witness then entered a private room. The deputy and Summar emerged a few minutes later, smiling. In an effort to find the barrels of the shotgun, the stock of which was found at Santa Monica, naval officials today offered their aid to civil authorities A submarine towed a diving crew to the spot and the divers were at work.

A Defense Fund.

Los Angeles, Aug. 13.—Efforts to raise $50,000 defense fund will be made by relatives and friends of Arthur C. Burch and Mrs Madalynne Obenchain, indicted for the murder of J. Belton Kennedy, in Los Angeles, Chicago and Evanston, Illinois. It was learned today when preliminary arrangements were being made for the trial of the two, it became known.

A leading criminal attorney of this city, who asked that his name be withheld for ethical reasons, disclosed that friends of Burch's family had approached him concerning the case and had assured him that $25,000 could easily be raised for Burch's defense.

When the attorney informed those who consulted him that he would not enter the case unless he was retained to defend both Burch and Mrs. Obenchain, he was told that such an arrangement would be satisfactory and that a joint defense had already been decided upon The parties who conferred with the attorney stated they represented Burch's parents

Burch's father, an Evanston minister, and Attorney Ralph S Obenchain, of Chibago, the divorced husband of Mrs. Obenchain, for whom the sent. Thursday, will arrive in Los Angeles tomorrow night and will immediately confer with the attorney who was consulted by Burch's friends.

PRESIDENT REMEMBERS

Tells Story of Painting Church at Iberia.

IBERIA MINISTER RECEIVES LETTER

President Harding Has a Pleasant Memory of His College Days in Village.

Mt. Gilead, Aug. 13.—The story of how President Harding painted the Methodist church at Iberia, ten miles from here, thirty-nine years ago was revived at the dedication of a remodeled structure to replace the old building the other day.

The president, then a student at Iberia college, recalls the event distinctly, and his letter to Rev. Mr. E H. Curtis, enclosing a donation for the church, has been thumbed and read with pride by thousands of citizens

"I remember I painted the church during my school days at the old Ohio Central college, and I left it with a clean coat of good white paint in 1882," the president wrote.

Pleasant Memories.

"I have many a pleasant memory of Iberia and the old college. I remember those of us who were termed boarding students were expected to divide our attendance among the three churches, then existent in the village I may, therefore, lay valid claim to a goodly share of attendance at the Methodist church during my period at the college.

"I am still persuaded that the smaller college, with the personal contact between the members of the faculty and student body, were the best educational institutions we have ever been able to boast.

"If there are those joining you in the work who remember me, I will be glad to have you convey to them, my very cordial greetings."

Kitzig was the chauffeur who hauled the booze to Ohio from Pennsylvania and it was his testimony that brought about the convictions. He was found murdered here this week. Lungren and Harry Humes, of East Liverpool, arrested yesterday, are being closely questioned today. Humes' revelation has also brought about the arrest of a foreigner, who is held for operating a house of ill fame where Humes and others connected with the liquor gang, are alleged to have taken young girls for immoral purposes, taking the money they received. GRIM STORY OF DAYS OF HORROR

Passed on Narrow Ledge in a Mountain Chasm.

EXPERIENCE OF A WOMAN EXPLORER

Mrs. W. E. Stone Explains the Cause of Death of Husband and Her Own Fall.

St. Paul, Aug. 13.—En route to Lafayette, Indiana, for burial, the body of Dr. W. E Stone, president of Perdue university, who fell to his death in the Canadian Rockies near Banff, July 17, passed through here yesterday.

Accompanying the body were Mrs. Stone, who herself was rescued from a mountain ledge after eight days' exposure without food, and her sons and other relatives. Funeral services will be held, probably Monday, at Lafayette

Despite the hardships she has endured, Mrs. Stone shows no lasting physical effects of her experience. Her hands still are rough and sore from the friction of ropes, but other bruises pactically have healed.

Mrs Stone, according to the account of her experiences recited by Harlan Stone, a son, said she and her husband were ascending Mt. Eanon, 10,800 feet high, orped together, with Dr. Stone leading. Near the top they came upon a rock chimney, a V-shaped cut in the mountainside, with frequent footholds—and Dr. Stone climbed up through this Without her knowledge, he had untied the rope that had held them, and after climbing through the chimney, called out to her: "I see nothing higher" Just a moment later, crumbling rocks caused him to lose his hold and he plunged past her to his death. This was at 6 p. m., July 17.

Mrs. Stone declared that it seemed to her that his body fell 3000 feet before it struck in a chasm. Too shocked to move, she remained in her dangerous position all through that night and most of the next day without food or water.

Want of Water.

Apparently the want of water caused an hallucination as she thought she saw many people moving about a short distance down the mountain-side. She espied a ledge about forty feet down, and uncoiling her rope, began to lower herself to it, in the belief that it led around the mountain to the people she believed there.

Her rope came to an end about ten feet above the ledge, but finding she should not raise herself again, she released her hold and tumbled to the ledge, which was four feet wide at its greatest width, and only a few feet longer.

Pocketed on the ledge, she discovered a tuft of moss and beneath it found water slowly seeping through the rocks. For two days she drank frequently, digging with a sharp stone, a small hole to hold what water seeped in.

Then, fearing the water would play out, she wound her watch and timed herself to one drink only every two hours.

Two nights on the ledge it rained heavily, but Mrs Stone declared she lost all reckoning of time and she hardly seemed to think. She suffered greatly from the rough character of the rocks which prevented her lying in any position other than face down.

For a little more than eight days she remained on the ledge. Then her occasionally uttered cries for help were heard by Aemmer, the Swiss guide, a member of a searching party, who lowered himself and eventually rescued her.

TAX-REVISION BILL DELAYED

Washington, Aug. 13.—President Harding and Republican Leader Mondell conferred, today, relative to the general legislative situation. Mondell advised the president that the tax-revision bill may be delayed several weeks in passing the house and probably will not be passed on August 25, as expected. It is understood the president expressed a desire that the bill for relief of the railroads be passed by congress before a recess is taken, despite the fact that senate leaders have informed the president that there is little chance of early passage of the bill by the senate.

FINDINGS RETURNED AGAINST OFFICIALS

Report of State Examiner in Erie County Submitted.

Columbus, Aug. 13.—Findings totalling over $4,000, involving thirty-five Erie county officials, are contained in a report made public today, of an examination of the offices of that county by State Examiner John A. Bliss.

The chief charge of alleged irregularities contained in the report is that of George W. Wiles, county treasurer, had carried his personal checks as cash in the county treasury for money advanced to friends.

The report stated that Wiles took the checks out, amounting to $4,745 and turned the cash over to Examiner Bliss when informed that the checks were not legal assets.

Computing interest on the checks at six per cent, Examiner Bliss informed Wiles he owed the county $55.67 as total interest, which Wiles paid.

A finding totaling $1,219.04, was returned against four Erie county banks as accrued interest on county deposits, plus interest on the delinquencies. The bank officials paid their respective amounts into the county treasury. Examiner Bliss said.

EARTH CUTS THROUGH TAIL OF A COMET

Report Made by Observer in German Astronomical Station.

Heidelberg, Aug 13.—Announcement is made at the Koenigstuhl observatory that the earth passed through the tail of a comet the night of August 8.

At sunset, August 7, a bright object was observed near the sun by W. W. Campbell, director of Lick observatory, which is located near San Jose, California. It was described as brighter than Venus, and was located three degrees east and one degree south of the sun.

Five persons saw the celestial object, and reports from the observatory indicated that experts believed it might be the nucleus of a big comet. It would appear to be probable that this identification was correct, in view of the foregoing report from Germany.

Since the night of August 7 a special detachment of observers, directed by Commander F. B. Littell, of the Naval observatory at Washington, has been searching the sunset and sunrise skies, without success, for traces of the new celestial body.

STATE POLICE AND DEPUTIES DISARMED

Officers Captured by Armed Band of Miners.

Charleston, W. Va., Aug 13.—A detachment of state police and three deputy sheriffs of Logan county were surrounded by an armed band of men, late yesterday, near Sharples, that county and their arms taken from them, according to a message from Sheriff Don Chafin, of Logan county, received here today.

Rumors that one or more troopers had been killed were declared by the sheriff to be unfounded.

The force was out looking for moonshiners and bootleggers and found themselves surrounded before they had time to defend themselves. After being disarmed, they were permitted to go free.

The men in the armed band were said to be miners

There has been no shooting, so far as learned. The cause of the trouble is unknown here. The state police answered what is now believed to have been a fake call to put down trouble near Sharples.

Asks for Receiver for Steamship Line.

New York, Aug. 13.—DeLancey Nicoll, today, renewed his application in federal court here for a receiver for the United States Mail Steamship line, which he represents. He was accompanied in court by Bainbridge Colby, former secretary of state and law partner of former President Woodrow Wilson.

Judge Manton set Monday for a hearing on the application. Benjamin Barber, representing the United States shipping board, was present.

Mr. Nicoll told the court that a receiver was desired, as the expected financial aid which caused him to ask a few days ago that the receivership action be held up had not materialized.

Without Authority.

Columbus, Aug 13.—That a rural board of education has no legal authority to elect a superintendent of schools, is the ruling announced today by Attorney General Price. The ruling, which went to Prosecuting Attorney Williamson, Xenia, explained that a state law provides for county supervision of schools through county superintendents and assistant county superintendents elected by county school boards.

POUND OF BREAD 6,000 RUBLES

According to Refugees Reaching England from Russia.

MOTHERS THROW LITTLE ONES INTO THE VOLG

Kill Children To Avoid Suffering by Starvation—Russia Land Without Food.

London, Aug 13.—A pound of bread in Russia costs 6,000 rubles or 3,600 rubles at the pre-war rate of the Russian ruble, according to refugees who arrived at Hull, today from Russia. Oat flour sells at 2,500 rubles a pound.

There were seventeen fugitives in the party reaching Hull, most of them British citizens. One man who had been in the flour business for thirty-one years in Russia described conditions for the Daily Telegraph:

"The harvest was a compelte failure Very little seed was sown and the crops suffered from severe drouth It is not exaggeration to say that Russia is a land without bread. The people are crying for food, for black bread. Black bread is on sale at some places, but the price is prohibitive I have seen peasants exchange horses for bread In Saratoff, I saw eleven persons die of starvation in one night. I saw mothers throw their children into the Volga river, rather than see them die of hunger"

Word was received at Russian relief headquarters from Riga, that the negotiations between Walter L Brown, director of American relief in Russia and Boris Litvinoff, envoy of the Moscow soviet government are proceeding satisfactorily. Mr Brown is hopeful that additional American prisoners now are near the border on their way out of Russia. He is ready to undertake active work as soon as the rest of the Americans are safely out of the country.

To Get Production.

New York, Aug. 13.—Soviet Russia, suffering from hunger, has set to work to put her run-down farms in a productive state.

Three workshop trains, each carrying thirty-five cars of machinery for the repair of agricultural implements, have left Moscow for the farming regions to the north, east and south, according to a message received from that city yesterday by the publication, Soviet Russia Two more such trains will be sent this week to remote Siberian farming districts by the Agriculture commissariat.

JOHN D. ROCKEFELLER NOT A BILLIONAIRE

Son Enters Emphatic Denial to Statement Published.

New York, Aug. 13.—Contrary to popular belief, John D. Rockefeller is not a billionaire. The following letter from John D. Rockefeller, Jr., throwing light upon the wealth of his father, was printed here today.

"In an article entitled 'Country Drifting into Control of Industrial Kings,' which appeared August 7, the statement was made that my father's estate is estimated at $2,400,000,000. In this connection, may I say that my father's estate has never reached 1,000,000,000 and has been materially reduced by the large gifts from principal which he has made during recent years."

CALLS MEETING OF THE COUNCIL

council in requesting the council of the league of nations to study the subject and advise upon the fixing of a line separating Germany and Poland.

The resolution was so drawn that the council of the league may not decide the question at issue, but Premiers Lloyd George and Briand pledged themselves to accept the advice of the league.

It was remarked informally in the supreme council that the council of the league could hardly make any recommendation in less than three or four months.

Germans Admonished.

In another resolution Germany and Poland were admonished by the supreme council to remain quiet pending a settlement of the issue.

Yesterday's decision came as the conclusion of five days of earnest discussion which began with an agreement in principle between Mr. Lloyd George and Briand on what was called a "compromise line." The premiers fell apart, however on the finding by the experts that the industrial triangle in Upper Silesia could not be divided as a working economic unit any more than could the Pittsburgh district.

Lord Curzon, the British foreign secretary, smiled, and Marshal Foch laughed when M. Briand, under revious agreement with Mr. Lloyd George, yesterday, made the proposal that the supreme council submit the question of the boundary to the council of the league of nations.

As Private Person.

Intimations had been flying about as the disagreement over the situation became more evident that President Harding would be asked to decide upon the boundary line, not officially as president, but unofficially as a private person, he to be provided with every facility for his representatives thoroughly to examine into the question and the powers to agree in advance to accept his opinion as final.

Lord Curzon is known to have considered asking President Harding to act, but on reflection he is said to have been of the belief that a reply could not be received from Washington under several days and as it was quite uncertain what this reply would be, abandoned the idea. M. Briand raised the question of the submission of the decision to President Harding during a conversation this morning with Premier Lloyd George, but Mr. Lloyd George thought it better to refer it to the league of nations.

The inter-allied military commission, which is sitting at Versailles under the chairmanship of Marshal Foch, reported today to the supreme council that much still remains to be done as regards the disarmament of Germany, and that control must be continued.

Decision to refer the Upper Silesian boundary to the council of the league was reached after it had become evident that it was impossible to reach a compromise between the British and French viewpoints.

No Disagreement.

"This is not a disagreement between Great Britain and France," said Mr. Lloyd George. "The Italian experts take the same view as ours, and Japan concurs. This is no reflection on the French government and its experts, and it is important to say the British are not alone in pressing their single view on France. The difference is due not to the problem itself, but to the excited state of public opinion and therefore we have the right to seek some other tribunal, although a majority of the council takes one view and France is alone in taking another."

Polish Attack.

Berlin, Aug. 13.—A Polish attack may begin in Upper Silesia, tomorrow, according to a report from Tarnowitz to the Deutsche Zeitung, today. The correspondent said he had learned Polish regulars were under orders to be ready to enter Upper Silesia on Sunday and attack Kosel, Gleiwitz and Rosenburg. It was reported several Polish regiments would move if final orders for the attack were given.

five per cent. The bill carries a maximum sur-tax rate of thirty-two per cent., which is a reduction of existing rates and effective January 1, 1922. It is decided to continue the present taxes on capital stock instead of merging this tax with the general corporation income tax which has been increased from ten to fifteen per cent.

The ways-and-means committee, today, agreed to repeal the tax on express matter. This tax is one cent on every twenty cents of value of express.

WHITE HOUSE STATEMENT

step toward restoration of improved conditions of general business."

The Statement.

The White House statement was, in part, as follows:

"During the consideration of the revenue revision program of which an outline has heretofore been given to the public, the effort was to devise a measure of practicable workable tax reform. The aim was to establish methods that would raise the needed revenue within reasonable certainty, that would make collection sure and inexpensive and that would properly adjust burdens among all classes of the community. It is felt that highly important progress has been made along these lines.

"The social and economic bearings of the new proposals are significant. There has been no effort to relieve the rich of their share of burdens, but rather to insure that no class will be left an avenue of escape from these. ****

"For example the reduction to thirty-two per cent. of the highest income and surtax brackets is expected by the experts to produce actually more revenue from these sources than do the present much higher rates. The present rates prevent transactions which would involve application of the high rates and thus keep away taxes from the government. ****

To Reduce Burden.

"The basis of the high rate, of course, is economy in expenditure. The tax burden is to be reduced $550,000,000 by cutting that amount off the government's requirements. To do this requires rigid and rapidly executed economies, which the government departments have undertaken to effect.*

"The reduction and ultimate wiping out of the transportation tax will bring relief to both producer and consumer. The farmer as a producer, finds this tax deducted from the value of what he produces; the consumer, as to those articles, finds it added to the price of what he buys. It reaches both and its abolition would be a great relief to both "The so-called nuisance tax is to be done away with. They are a source of constant annoyance to the public, of expense to dealers who must make minute change over their counters and are easily and constantly avoided.*

"In short, the whole tax-reform program contemplates freeing business from what have been found paralyzing and exasperating restrictions, encouraging to the utmost the resumption of enterprise and business, removing every possible incentive to evasion and fraud, and distributing the tax burden with the greatest possible equity among all classes of people, keeping in mind the purpose to impose the larger share on those best able to pay."

RAIN INCREASES CORN PROSPECTS IN STATE

According to Reports to Ohio Agricultural Statistician.

Reports received from correspondents by C J. West, agricultural statistician, indicate an increase in the condition of corn of from ten to twenty per cent, owing to the recent rains. The improvement is especially notable in those sections where the dry weather of July had made the most serious inroads.

Some correspondents report as high as sixty per cent of wheat sold soon after threshing and the range runs from ten to forty per cent, depending upon the locality. This indicates a much earlier marketing of the wheat crop than usual. The price received averages $1 11 a bushel.

There has not been a great amount of hay sold in the meadow. The average price for hay in the meadow, taking the state as a whole is about nine dollars per ton, the reports show that a much lower price was received in many cases. The cost of baling was about $2 75 per ton on the average.

The outlook for clover seed is rather unfavorable owing to the decreased acreage and the fairly low condition of the fields

The Deltor Makes the Making Easy

It was explained to one of our customers that the DELTOR instructions would save her in material many times the cost of the pattern. She said she had used BUTTERICK PATTERNS for years and knew how without the DELTOR. About two weeks later the same lady came in and told us that out of curiosity she placed her pattern on her material as she always had, and then she tried the DELTOR way, followed the chart exactly and was surprised at the saving of material.

BABE RUTH DODGES PIN-JABBING TEST

But Divulges His Home-Run Secret.

QUEER THEORIES ROUSE TEMPER IN BASEBALL.

Bambino Finally Admits That All He Does Is Merely To Swing Head Off.

[BY BABE RUTH.]

After long and careful deliberation, I have decided to divulge the secret of my home runs The last time we played in Chicago I had a curious experience

I wouldn't tell it except that it seems to be a matter of public concern There are a lot of people in the world who do not seem to be satisfied with the mere doing of the thing; they have to know all about how it happens It is just like a little boy who is not satisfied until he has taken the wheels out of his new watch.

It is getting to the point where I believe if I don't come through and tell how it is that I knock these homers some of the scientific folks will be taking me apart to see what it is that makes me able to do it So I guess I might better tell.

There are a number of theories on the subject One night, when we were here in May, after I got back to the hotel, I found two scientific agents waiting for me They wore glasses and had notebooks They seemed to regard me as a sort of bug and I could just feel that they were itching to take the top off my head and look down into my brain One of them kept calling me "Mister Ruth"—which showed how much of a fan he was.

Queer Questions.

They asked me all kinds of queer questions. One of them named over a long list of things, such as a lamp, a stove, a horse, a goat, a stickpin, a railroad train and a long string of stuff like that

"Now," he said, "will you please repeat as much of that as you can remember and in the order that I said them?"

Naturally I thought he was putting me down for a boob and it made me sore. I said, "Go find a junk dealer. I never had any experience in that line.

Then he explained that it was part of a scientific experiment He looked kind of discouraged when I declined to take part in the experiment. Honest, it made me nervous and I wanted to get rid of them

Then one of them asked if I would have any objection to his jabbing me suddenly with a pin, while the other guy held my pulse

I asked him if he would have any objection to ringing for the ambulance about the same time he stuck a pin into me, for I told him he would be needing it. I was good and sore by that time.

The one who asked me looked rather offended and got up to go He said they meant no offense; that their only idea was to find out my instinctive reaction. I told them I didn't know what an instinctive reaction was, but I would take a chance of mine being on the job all right without getting pins stuck into me.

Doped by Geometry.

Another bird came to see me one day. Say, this fellow was awful. He had it all worked out in geometry or something like that. He showed me a paper with a lot of diagrams and stuff about wind resistance.

Another fan who seemed excited was a lady. She said she was a leader of a school of new thought. She said she was sure my success in swatting the ball was due to some thought that I held as I went up to the plate. She asked me if I ever "went into the silence," and concentrated on the thought of success. I told her I didn't know where the silence was and I wouldn't know how to concentrate on the thought of success even if I got there.

Not long ago the doctors started in on me. One of them came to see me. He said it was the contention of some of the physicians present that I had abnormal eyesight. He wanted to know if I had any objections to meeting a bunch of doctors some time for an examination in detail of my eyesight.

Visited By Hypnotist.

I told him I hadn't and objection and I would some time. And some time I suppose I will—if I ever get around to it.

I don't know any reason why they shouldn't look into my lamps if they like; but I must confess it is not my idea of an evening of joy and laughter to sit around in the middle of a bunch of doctors and be gone over like a race horse.

The funniest one who ever asked me about this said he was professional hypnotist. He said he was convinced that I knocked the homers by reading the minds of the pitchers He said it was possible to hypnotize folks unconsciously and he thought I was doing it.

And of course there are the fans I get inquiries from them by the tubful. They want to know how I hold the bat and how I stand at the plate and how I practice during the off season and whether I swing with all my might.

Price $2.98

I never heard pet quality from Professor Einstein but I will bet he started back to Germany with some kind of theory as to what makes me knock home runs

The Secret Told.

I don't know what relativity is, and I don't believe anybody else does—including Professor Einstein But I imagine he will have my home runs explained by it in the same

Well, inasmuch as there seems to be so much public curiosity about it, I have decided to "break my long silence," as the ambassadors and divorcees say, and tell it all.

When it comes my turn I grab a bat When I see the ball coming I swing my head off Now honestly that is all there is to it It sounds simple, and that is why it's true.

Painting Profits On Your Home

It's an old trick to paint up an old home to coax a better price when selling it. The same applies today as it did five or fifty years ago.

The old saying—"Good Paint Costs Nothing" is a mighty axiom for the property owner to keep in mind.

PAINT NOW

The weather is good; no gnats to stick on paint and spoil the appearance of work, and painters are not so busy.

GOOD PAINT IS CHEAP WOOD INSURANCE

A house painted in time, lasts longer, looks better, takes less paint in the long run.

The longer you delay painting the more oil and paint the wood will absorb—besides the additional labor cost.

Our stock of Hanna Green Seal paint and Champion paste paint is not only good paint, but it comes in all tints, colors and kinds that you could possibly desire.

We have Eagle White Lead for the man who wants to mix his own paint.

The railroads needn't imagine that they are the only pebble on the beach when it comes to the matter of needing money. The thing's epidemic.

"After all," says the Newark American Tribune, "money is man's best friend. If he has it he needs no other, he can pay his way." Yet we have known men with money who have been mighty lonesome, discontented and miserable.

If it would be true economy to sink our wooden ships as Chairman Lasker holds, think of the magnificent economy it would have been never to have built them!

We read about the Sultan of Zanzibar taking his fifty wives along with him on his vacation. The West is West and the East is East, or words to that effect. Over here a lot of husbands couldn't enjoy a vacation with one along.

Columbus evidently expects better times next year. She voted to save daylight despite the fact that it's a drug on the market this year.

This summer weather may suit some, but it will hardly meet the approval of anybody with a spark of sympathy for the fair maid of the front porch swing. It has been either too hot or too cold for front porch romance.

The American prohibitionists are not the only ones trying to make Cuba dry. There are some who are trying to make her dry at their own expense.

The paragrapher who suggests Sir Thomas Lipton as a mediator for the settlement of the Irish question may be joshing, but Sir Thomas wouldn't be a half bad man at that kind of a job at that, if we are any earthly good as a guesser.

A news item says whisky is selling in England at the highest price ever known. In one regard at least conditions in the Old world and the New are very much alike.

Emma Goldman is said scarcely to open her mouth so fearful is she that she will lose her life. Conditions may be, and probably are, horrible over in Russia, but it is manifest that they are not wholly without their compensations.

The alleged fact that our schools and universities are hotbeds of Socialism and sovietism should not be offered by the Ku Klux Klan as an excuse for its existence. Two wrongs never made a right.

"I refuse to believe the Geraldine Farrar-Lou Tellegen squabble is for advertising purposes," observed the restaurant philosopher at luncheon today. "Both of 'em are too wise not to realize that there is mighty little publicity stuff to be had from the failure of artistic temperaments to dwell together in peace and happiness."

Three magazines went out of business last month unable to meet the [illegible] and materials. Each month has its quota of suspensions of magazine publication for the same cause.

"If we can figure it out," says the typo-philosophic Dusky Union, "some of these newspaper chaps who write farm hints are the same fellows who draw the farmers' picture with long whiskers and high top boots. We are sure we don't call them newspaper chaps. They're nature writers and journalists!

ANOTHER THEORY BLOWN UP

TARGET PRACTICE ON GERMAN BOATS
UNCLE SAM—"I wonder what has become of that leader who wanted to stand fearlessly upon the bridge of the German boat while the aircraft sprinkled bombs harmlessly over the Atlantic Ocean."

THE RUIN OF RUSSIA.

The appeal for help sent "to all governments" by George Tchitcherin, Russian soviet minister of foreign affairs, confirms other reports of the deplorable condition of Russia, a condition to which that great nation has been brought by the operation of Bolsherik rule. It appears that something like 15,000,000 persons must have immediate help if they are to be barely kept alive. And this is one of the greatest food producing countries on the face of the globe.

This is the result of the operation of a system which has destroyed all individual initiative, and which simply lives on the accumulated capital of previous years, discouraging production and enslaving the people in worse degree than they were ever enslaved even in the days of serfdom. Showing the utterly destructive effect of the theories which have prevailed in Russia in recent years, the Wall Street Journal gives some comparative figures of the products of that country and of other nations.

In 1913 Russia produced 959,000,000 bushels of wheat. Our crop that year was 750,000,000 bushels. Its oats crop was 1,225,000,000 bushels or about fifteen per cent. more than ours. It produced more barley than all the rest of Europe, and nearly as much as the entire outside world. Its rye crop was 1,000,000,000 bushels, while the rest of the world, the United States included, raised about 800,000,000 bushels.

In the same year Russia raised four times as many potatoes as does the United States in a normal year, its production approximated one-third of the world's total. It was a large producer and exporter of beet sugar. Aside from the United States, it was the greatest livestock country in the world. Russia was once the fourth largest spinner of cotton. A world survey of the cotton industry, as of January 1, showed 570,000 Russian spindles running and 6,530,000 idle. The proportion holds true in all industry and transportation. The people freeze in a land of forests, coal and petroleum, and they starve in a land of boundless agriculture and grazing territory.

Talking about expensive tastes, think of that of the Kentucky girl who swallowed five silver spoons at the present price of silver!

"Which is the best kind of a community?" asks an exchange. A home-owning community would be our answer every time.

The Louisville Courier-Journal tells us that "one year after the Volstead act went into effect the imports into the United States jumped from 28,000 to 1,200,000 gallons. There must have been some awful epidemic of which we have had no knowledge.

CARDS ON THE TABLE.

Nothing is clearer than that some of the nations invited to the disarmament conference are trying to have the program arranged so that they will not be required to make a decision. They don't want those subjects brought up which the conference has been called upon to settle. That, it is superfluous to remind the discriminating reader, is the course of traditional Old World diplomacy. If certain nations can be assured they will not be disturbed they will be delighted to attend and give all the pledges the world can ask.

Had the peace conference at Paris given its time and energies to making peace under conditions already accepted, the world would today be standing on its head instead of its feet. It was when the delegates allowed themselves to be drawn away from the set purpose of the conference that their colossal blunder enrolled everything. Terms of peace are one thing, and compromising upon political claims among nations antagonistic for centuries is something else.

The world knows how little was done at Versailles to bring peace. If the Washington meeting is dragged away from its purpose, as certain signs seem to indicate, efforts to drag it into the conference will be as futile to bring armament limitations as the Versailles meetings did to bring peace. If [illegible] something to conceal, something [illegible] the people of the world [illegible] to know what those things are.

"God help the children of the rich! The children of the poor can work."

Says the editor of the Ohio State Journal.

John D. Rockefeller, Jr., remarked with a sigh the other day that he wished he had not been deprived of the necessity of working for his money, the way his more fortunate father had to. The remark sounds as if perhaps the younger Mr. Rockefeller had been posing a little, though quite likely the inheritor of wealth, if he is an ambitious young man, really feels that way at times. America despises a young man who does not work and work hard, and there is no doubt that the possession of wealth in early life robs a man of a great and, in fact, the usual incentive to work as he ought to. While the poor boys are envying the rich, we have no doubt that the rich sometimes envy those who must make their own way."

This editorial utterance conveys a rather poor and false impression of the younger Rockefeller, I think. Young Rockefeller works—works hard; he has always worked—worked hard. All the years he has worked hard to train himself for the management of the great wealth he is to inherit; and today he is working hard in the management of that wealth. Yet he is more or less dissatisfied with his lot—with himself. Why? Because he has missed, and is missing—in a way, to an extent—the very best of life. And what has the younger Rockefeller missed—what is he still missing?

Self-expression.

I make use of the term for the want of a better.

Every human soul would reveal itself, give expression of itself—in acts and deeds, not in words alone. And in that revelation, that expression, lies true happiness. It isn't really what one has, but what one gets for one's self, that gives real pleasure. It isn't what one knows, but what one has learned one's self, that affords genuine joy. It isn't what one owns that counts; but what one creates. It isn't mere reputation that matters; its accomplishment. It isn't the fact that one has arrived; it's the fact that he builded the road himself.

Friend, you may own and run a twin-six limousine today, but you don't get half the pleasure out of it you got out of the little wagon you made for yourself when a boy.

You—made—the—wagon!

You may own and use the finest fowling-piece in the land today; but it doesn't afford you a fraction of the joy the elder popgun afforded you when you were a rural youngster.

You—made—the—popgun!

And, in the making of the wagon and the popgun, you gave expression to your soul—you revealed it to yourself and to the world.

A thousand dollars earned will buy more real pleasure and true happiness, than will a million dollars inherited.

One get's the thousand dollars one's self!

One gives expression to one's soul, one reveals it.

So—

"God help the children of the rich! The children of the poor can work."

REAL SAVINGS BEING MADE.

It is cheerful news which comes from Washington regarding a reduction of taxes. The administration is proving that the Republican party's pre-election pledges of lowered cost of government were not made merely to get votes.

With only five months of time elapsed since the new administration took hold, and with opposition in many interested quarters to reduction of governmental expense, the prospect now is for a cut of $600,000,000 in the taxes to be collected from the people, and a reduction of $[illegible] in the expenses of the national administration.

This national example needs to be followed by the budget makers of the various commonwealths, counties and municipalities. Tax burdens have been increasing in every direction, and it is time to call a halt. Deflation in income and profits has already taken place. Let there be a deflation of taxes as well.

CAPTAIN SAM BRADY AND FAMOUS LEAP

Capt. Sam Brady was a membe[r] a fighting family which made his [name] on the Pennsylvania border during [the] Indian wars after the Revolu[tion]. Captain Brady's greatest exploit [took] place in Ohio. He had been capt[ured] by the Indians and carried to the [Mu]dsky Towns, headquarters for all [the] Ohio tribes, where the savages [pre]pared to burn him at the stake.

He was stripped, bound to a [stake] and slow fires kindled around him. [But] the Indians hated him so much [that] they wished to torture him as long [as] possible. Brady was a powerful [man] and he strained at his fetters [until] they were loosened slightly. Then [with] with a final effort he snapped the [last] bond, leaped across the barrier of [the] flame and, seizing a squaw, pitched [her] into the fire.

Before the Indians could recover [from] their surprise, the scout escaped [from] the village and plunged into the [dark] woods, hotly pursued by hundreds of [the] savages. Finally he came to the [bank] of the Cuyahoga river, near the present site of Kent in Portage county.

At this place the river flowed [be]tween steep, rocky banks, 20 [feet] across from side to side. The [whole] was mapped. There was no other [place] for miles up and down the river where he could ford it. The Indians were closing in on him and his only chance of escape was to try to leap across the chasm.

Brady could hear the savages [yell]ing in the woods only a short distance away as he ran back toward them to get a good start. Then turning, he sped for the brink and putting all his failing strength into a final spurt, he sprang for the opposite cliff. The jump was a little short and he struck the bank a few feet below the edge. The Indians stopped in amazement then as the scout scrambled up over the edge, they opened fire.

They wounded him in the leg, delaying his flight, and in a short time were on his heels again. He came to a halt and plunged in. Stooping beneath the broad pads of a water lily, he breathed through a hollow reed while the savages hunted in vain on the shores of the lake. They found his bloody trail to the water's edge and, believing that he had drowned rather than be captured again, gave up the chase.

Soon afterward Brady reached Fort Pitt in safety. He had many more thrilling adventures before his death on Christmas day, 1795, but his 20-foot leap across the Cuyahoga was the greatest feat of all.

Some Cigars Would Cure Any Smoker

If I had not of smoked at all I would now be holding a lucrative position with Ringling's circus.

To the editor. I don't expect no coupons from the United cigar stores for writeing this here letter but a man has got to write about something and if such famous men as Irving Cobb and Samuel Blythe secs fit to bare their soul in confidential articles like how I got skinny and how I quit cocktails and etc why I guess it is O. K for a man like I to tell the story of how I conquered my Lady Nicotine a specially as it seems to me like this subject must be of greater gen int than the other 2 as I believe they's more people wants to quit smokeing than wants to get thin or dry But in writeing this article I will half to raise the veil of secrecy in regards to some of my most intimate details which I ask the readers indulgents in advance for same

Well friends I did not begin smokeing till I was 9 yrs old and kind of went at it slow even then as I had been warned that smokeing would stunt a person's growth and I might say here that if that is true why if I had not of smoked at all I would now be holding a lucrative position with Ringling's circus

Most men of 9 yrs that is raised in small towns begins their career of crime with a pipe load of corn silk, but I started right in at the top with my father's cigars which on acct of him haveing a whole box of them I did not think he would miss a couple a day but he found it out some way another and him and I had a meeting and I give in on a couple minor points amongst which was that I would quit smokeing if he would quit acting that way So I lived pretty clean for 2 yrs and then begin again but this time it was cubebs and finely cigaretts which I rolled my own with a brand of tobacco that is now out of print which it was named Duke's Cameo and it looked like it had been swept off the barber shop floor and probably tasted the same.

Well it ain't my intentions to bore the reader with a history of the different articles I smoked but sufficient to say that by the time I was 21 I was takeing 2 or 3 pills before breakfast wile dureing the rest of the day I didn't play no favorites but indulged in home mades and ready mades and pipes and cigars in whatever order they come handy and nobody had to rack their brains to try and think up what to give me for xmas.

A 50-50 Surgeon.

Well 5 or 6 yrs. later I went to a Dr. and asked him what was it and he says it was whooping cough which it was on acct. of my palate being too long and kept tickleing me, so he snipped off ½ of it and for all as I know he has still got his 50 per cent and I will furnish his name and address to bona fide collectors

Well as a person grows older they learn that the secret of happiness in this life is making the best of what you have got and it wasn't long till I found out that I could cough just as good with only ½ a palate and I enjoyed myself that way for 6 or 7 yrs. more and then seen a throat specialist and he says it was the tonsils so I gave them to him but kept the cough A few days after this operation which I won't go into the details of it the bird that had ministered the ether come to see me and asked how many ciragettes did I smoke a day and I told him 50 and he says it ain't none of my business but if I was you I would quit before I got the habit

So at this time we had a Dr writeing health articles for the paper and he didn't charge nothing for advice to fellow employs so I asked him if they was anything that would help a person quit smokeing and he says to go to a drug store and buy some gentian root and whenever I felt like smokeing to just chew a little of that instead. Well friends maybe some of you has tasted gentian root but if you haven't I would advice you to try it. It won't cure you from the tobacco habit but it will fix you so that your Mrs can serve quinine for dessert and you will wonder if she has bought a bee

Tobacco Versus Clothes.

Well things went along till about a yr ago when a friend of mine that had also whooped it up for several yrs said he had found a kind of tobacco that you could smoke as many cigarettes as you wanted and not cough your head off so I give it a trial and it was just like he said Only they was a slight draw back namely that the ashes on these kind of cigarettes don't half to be knocked off but they fall off themselfs and they never light nowheres but on your pants leg and when they light they stay lit and by the time you have smoked these cigarettes a wk. your cloths is as full of holes as an ocarena

Well friends I would rather cough my way through life than go around looking so porous so I went back to the ready mades and stuck with them till this last June when I got the big idear which was to not try and quit smokeing entirely but to cut out the cigarettes and smoke nothing but cigars on the grounds that you wouldn't smoke near so much

Like for inst. you wouldn't be libel to light one before breakfast or in the middle of the night or dureing meals or go out between acts at the theater and smoke one, and in fact you wouldn't have time to smoke more than 8 or 9 of them per day. Whereas 2 to 4 pills before breakfast ain't nothing you might say and between then and bed time you can easy get away with 40 or 50 and when you go to bed you don't no sooner get to sleep than you wake up and they won't nothing put you back to sleep but another pill, till it gets so as the night is divided into 24 shifts of 20 minutes each, which you sleep one shift and smoke one shift and vice versa.

So friends and readers I cut out the cigarettes and have took up the cigars and that is all they is to the story of how I win my battle with the lady Nicotine only I might add that the first 2 days under the new regime I didn't hardly cough at all but now I am hitting again on all 4 cylinders, and I don't wake up no more in the night because in order to do that it is first necessary to go to sleep.

Ring W Lardner.

Great Neck, August 19.

I started right in at the top with my father's cigars.

Car Noises.

In studying the places of the car from which noises can come, let us take up the units of it, one by one, and see how and why noises can develop in them.

We have already seen how noises can develop in the engine, so that the first unit we have to consider is the clutch. While play between the grooves in the discs of a disc clutch and their key pieces will cause a knocking which will seem to come from the engine, clutch noises are almost always due to the throw-out collar and bearing. This will be a grinding noise. It is hard to keep grease or oil on this bearing, but as there is no load on the bearing, unless the driver rests his foot on the clutch pedal so as to put some pressure on it, there is little chance for wear. Many drivers, however, rest their foot on the pedal constantly, as described above, and so cause a wear, which will soon develop into a grinding noise. If the grinding sound stops when the clutch is disengaged, thn you can be reasonably sure that the clutch throw-out bearing is to blame.

Next after the clutch comes the transmission or gear set. Even on new cars there will usually be a hum or growl of the gears when in reverse, low or second. This is due to the setting or cutting of the gears, and cannot be cured and does no harm. If the noises develop with the using of the car, then it may be due to lack of lubrication, to worn barings and on an older car, to worn gears. Replacing or repairing the bearings is the only remedy. If thre is a scratching sound while in high, then the bearings are broken or cut up, and need quick replacing.

After the transmission comes the universal joint. A squeak from these is a sign of a lack of grease, while a knock, which comes when starting or accelerating the car, when going over rough roads, or when the engine is missing, is a sign that the pins or bushing are worn, or a bushing broken. It should be investigated. Universal joints are much neglected as regards grease.

A knock very much like that of the universal joint, but coming just under the left front seat, will be due to wear in the bumper of the torque arm and its supporting pin, or to the bumper spring being broken.

The differential assembly is the next unit from which noises come. It will growl or hum if the pinion and gear are not properly set, if they are worn, if the bearings are worn, or if there is lack of lubrication. When the hum develops with the age of the car, it need not be worried about, but if there is a growl after work has been done on the differential or its parts, or in a new car, then the setting of the gear and pinion should be checked up.

If the growl is scratchey, then the bearings, most likely the forward pinion bearing are broken, the balls or raceways are crushed, or something has gotten into them. The bearings of the rear wheels may be at fault, as the sound will travel along the axle shaft and seem to come from the differential. Replacement is about the only remedy.

If a tooth is broken out of the differential gear, there will be a knocking, which will come every revolution of the wheels.

From the differential we come to the rear wheels, on which are the brakes. A dragging brake, or a brake which is loose so that the bands rub against the side of the drum, will cause a bell-like scratchey noise. Many things may cause this and only a study of the brake will show the cause and remedy. If the wheel does not run true the drum may rest against the housing, causing a similar noise.

A loose wheel, bent axle or housing will cause an irregular rubbing sound, and, of course, such a sound, and, in fact, all rubbing sounds, should be investigated. The noise may indicate a dangerous condition, or one which need not be worried about.

Next come the springs. Lack of lubrication of the spring shackle bolts, or in the leaves, will result in a squeak on rough roads. The cure is obvious.

A squeak will also come from a loose body, or fender bolt, or loose lug bolts of the demountable rims. The top is often the cause of a squeak.

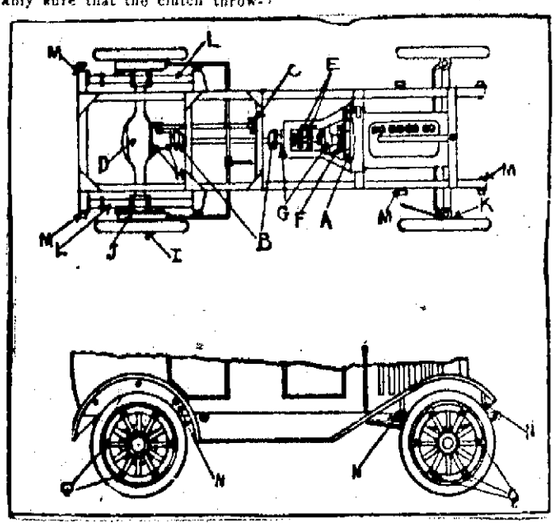
The driving gears of the speedometer, especially when they are placed on one of the front wheels, will very often cause an annoying scratching sound. An investigation will often show that a small piece of gravel has lodged in the teeth of one of the gears, the removal of which will eliminate the noise.

Of course, there are innumerable other places, such as a loose hood, windshield, brake support, toe-bracket, etc., from which squeaking or rattling sounds can come.

Tabulating the above noises, and referring to the illustration, we find that a knock can come from the clutch discs—A— universal pins or bushings—B—to torque arm bumper—C—broken differential gear—D.

Humming or growling from transmission gears—E—differential gears—D.

Scratching or grinding from clutch throw-out bearing—F—transmission bearing —G— differential bearings—H—rear wheel bearings—I—brakes—J—speedometer gears—K.



Squeak—from universal joint—B—springs—L—spring bolts—M—and by tightening them not only will loose body bolts, loose fender bolts—N—loose demountable rim bolts—Q—top.

Rattling and squeaking are most always due to loose bolts and nuts. It will, therefore, more than pay owners to go over all the bolts and nuts of their car at least at once a month. Many will be found loose, squeaks and rattles be eliminated, but the possibility of parts breaking will be greatly reduced.

Of course, I need not mention the need of a generous use of the grease cups and oil can, but reminding old drivers that they are the ones who are liable to be negligent in this respect may do some good.

Trouble Solver For Automobile

[If you have any troubles or wish any information about your automobile write to Frederick C. Guerrilch, M. E., Stamford, Connecticut.]

Q. I have a two cylinder——car and put in two new crank bearings of babbitt. One ran out in a thousand mile run. I put in the second on the same crank and it ran out in a thousand mile run, and the crank is perfectly smooth. Please advise me what the trouble might be, and what to do about it. F. K.

A. You probably are not getting oil to the bearing. Without an examination, I can not tell you just what to be the cause; namely, bearing too tight; no hole for the oil to enter or no oil groves cut; oil hole at the point of greatest pressure; oiling system not working properly. You should study your bearing and determine which portion the pressure due to the explosion comes, and have the oil hole and groves in the other portion. Misalignment of the bearings may cause your trouble. When fitting the bearing smear some Prussian blue on the crank, and revolve it in the bearing, and then note how the bearing is marked. If the edges only are blue then the shaft is probably out of line, and you will have to raise or lower one of the bearings, according to whether the half time gears are tight or loose.

Q. I have a 1916 —— model 75 which has run 1,200 miles. Can you tell me what causes the hissing sound out of the muffler at some times? At such times it jerks at eight or ten miles an hour and does not idle properly. O. B. F.

A. Both the hissing and the jerking are undoubtedly the result of missing, the hissing being due to the after burning of the unexploded mixture in the muffler. If you have not changed your carburetor adjustment from the former setting, the most likely cause of the missing is a slight loss of compression due to the valves needing grinding. Dirty spark plugs might also be the cause. At this time it would pay you to test the tightness of all the bolts on your car, as, for example, the bolts holding the carburetor to the manifold and manifold to cylinders, may have loosened and so allow extra air to enter the mixture, which would cause a slight missing at the low speeds.

Q. Your auto hints are a good help and it is a very desirable department and worth the price. I have an inquiry. I would like to know if there is a print out showing the working parts of the auto with their function described upon a large scale. I think such a chart would be a great help to a new purchaser and I would like one myself. Please let me know where I can get such a chart. L. K.

A. The Norman W. Henley Publishing Company, No. 132 Nassau street, New York City, sells a chart of the working parts of the engine for twenty-five cents. Of course it can not give the relation and function of the parts in the small space, but it is worth the price.

Q. I have a —— car, model 25, 1916, in which the starter and generator are combined in one. The starter works all right, but the generator does not indicate charge on the ammeter when the engine is running slowly or when speeded up.

I looked for broken wires or loose connections but could not find anything wrong. Now I don't know which is out of order the ammeter or the generator. Can you let me know how to find out? Y. L.

A. If your battery is being charged even though the ammeter does not indicate it, then the ammeter must be out of order. You might test the ammeter by a dry cell, by simply holding the wires connected to the terminals of the battery to the binding posts of the ammeter. If the ammeter registers then it is O. K. Do not use the storage battery for this test or the ammeter will be burned out. As your motor generator, is working all right as a starter it is very unlikely that it is not working as a generator, as the same brushes and windings are used for both. It may be that the belt which drives the generator is slipping badly. This can be tightened by raising the fan bracket. The automatic cutout, which you can get at by unscrewing the four screws holding the instrument plate on to the instrument board, may not be working right. The points of this cutout should be open when engine is idle or running slowly and closed at the higher speeds.

The makers of your car have a traveling field mechanic, and I believe that if you advise the agent from whom you bought the car he will look your car over when next in your territory.

In the first cars of your model a box where all wires were connected was furnished. This gave considerable trouble by short-circuit, and if you have one on your car the trouble may be there.

Q. I have been running a 1915 —— car and it always knocks when I pull a hill as if the spark is too far advanced even when I have the lever on the steering column down as far as it will go. Will you kindly tell me what to do to remedy it? J. G. R., Jr.

A. Your trouble is most likely due to carbon in the cylinders, as this will cause the engine to knock just as it does when the spark is too far advanced. You might try checking the spark advance: as follows: Set cylinder number 1 at top dead center on the completion of the compression stroke as explained in third lesson of the "Automobile Simplified." Retard spark control lever fully. Now look at the interrupter points. They should be in contact. If not then the spark is too far advanced. If in contact, slowly advance the spark lever and observe when the points just begin to open. They should just begin to open when the lever is advanced about one-half to an inch on the sector.

Q. I have a 1912 (—) car which gives me a lot of trouble. I recently had new piston rings put in, and my valves ground, but the cylinder near the dash board keeps missing, especially at low speed. I have tested the spark and am sure the spark is all right. Any suggestions you could make would be greatly appreciated. A. E. T.

A. Your ignition being O. K. your trouble must be due to a loss of compression, or to bad mixtures, as the other three cylinders hit regularly the mixture fault, if that be the trouble, will not be due to carburetor adjustment, but more likely to the admission of extra air into the missing cylinder. This might come from a leaking valve cap, a bad air leak through the valve stem guide and valve stem. Though you have new rings and your valves are ground, you may still have a loss of compression due to leaking.

Q. Will you tell me how to put a storage battery in my Ford, so as to keep it charged from the magneto. F. L. K.

A. You can not charge a storage battery from a magneto as the current from a magneto is alternating and a battery can be charged only by direct current. While alternating current can be converted into direct current by the use of a rectifier I know of none of these which is practical for the automobile.

Q. I am going to reline my clutch. Would it be advisable to use raybestos instead of the leather? J. J. McA.

A. I would use the same kind of material as the manufacturer of your car originally put into it.

Q. Is there any law against the use of headlights? S. R. E.

A. A number of states have made law against the use of glaring lights as hav emany of the larger cities.

Q. My Ford car gives me a lot of trouble when I start it. It starts all right, but the car goes ahead before I am in it, although I have my emergency brake on. I am afraid it will cause an accident. Please tell me what to do. H. L. T.

A. It may be that the low-speed band is too tight, or the clutch discs are dragging. By taking the cover off the transmission you can get at the bands and loosen them a little. If this fails to help, then I am inclined to believe that the transmission is gummed up. If you will drain out the oil and then wash the clutch with some kerosene the trouble will probably disappear.

Q. When going down a long hill my left brake caught on fire. Will you please tell me how to drive on a long hill so this won't happen again. Why did not the right brake also catch fire? G. P. G.

A. The best way to check your car when descending a hill is to use the engine as a brake. To do this, let the clutch in, turn off the spark and let the compression hold the car back. If the hill be steep you will have to shift to second. You can help the engine with your brake when you see the car speeding up.

On a long hill it is a good practice to alternate with the hand and foot brakes, when they are used to check the car.

The reason that the left brake caught fire and not your right one, is that the left brake was holding more than the right, and so became overheated quicker. You should have your brakes adjusted so that both hold equally.

Q. I have a 1916 Chandler car and when I first got it could travel very slowly on high gear, but now gives a lot of short jerks when I try to do so. What is the trouble? C. A. D.

A. You are either losing compression or your spark plugs are fouled. If you will clean your plugs and grind your valves, I am certain that your trouble will disappear.

Q. I have practically made up my mind to buy a ———— car. Do you consider this the best car for ——— dollars? F. A. K.

A. The car you mention is a good car, but for various reasons we cannot express our opinion as to whether it is the best for its price.

Q. Please tell me what is the meaning of a wheel-base, and also of tread. J. W. K.

A. The wheel-base of a car is the distance from the center of the front axle to the center of the rear axle. The tread is the distance from the point the right front wheel touches the ground to the point the left front wheel touches the ground.

JUBILEE'S PARDNER

by Judd Mortimer Lewis

Illustrations by Edwins

This is Saturday and when I woke up my neck was as limber as a piece of rubber and I took the rag off that my mother had tied on it and let Jubilee down with the rope in his teeth and put on my short pants when I had held them up to the light to see if they was getting thin in the seat but they wasn't.

I stood up against the side of the door and made a mark with a piece of chalk to see how tall I am, because I am going to watch out and see if I am growing at all. I don't believe am growing any more than a rabbit. If a fella is growing at all he ought to be as big as a house by this time I can remember almost forever and I was always like I am now, but I am glad I thought about the chalk mark. I will make another mark tomorrow and then I will multiply and I will measure my father and my unkle and then I will know how big I have got to be and how long it is going to take before I get long pants, and then I can tell Younlss. She does not say anything about it but she must be wondering if I am not ever going to have long ones. I bet she is wishing she was big enough to have her dresses as short as her mother's but she don't ever say so. Girls is different from boys. Boys are always thinking and telling what they are going to do when they get long pants, but a girl never tells what she is going to be when she gets short dresses.

We went out looking for snakes today. I was going to get enough of them so I could skin them and then I would braid their skins and make me a hat band and a belt and then I would walk through town and everybody would turn around to look at me, and they would think I was brave to kill all them snakes, but we could not find any, so we dug up a few angle worms and took a look at them, but they cannot be skun.

Then we went to the vacant lot and was playing ball and Younlss and Hattie and Maggie, the mut that got fascinated on the leg come over so we made it up that we would go and get some green apples and they asked if they could go along and we said they could and they did, and they all chunked down as many as we did.

Younlss is certainly brave. Maggie and Hattie have not got any sense. The man chased us and the girls did not even run till they got outside of his orchard, and we walked down the road and they said when they got to us that the man said they should come back and get some when they was ripe, and he showed them where the rambo tree is. Younlss is going to show me. If a fella was as sweet as a girl and as tuff as a fella he could have a lot of fun, because no one would do anything to him. When I had went to bed and was holding Jubilee close to me I thought about the kittens and wondered if anything was happening to Younlss.

The man chased us and the girls did not even run till they got outside of his orchard.

HINTS FOR THE MOTORIST

by ALBERT L. CLOUGH

Copyright, 1921, by the International Syndicate

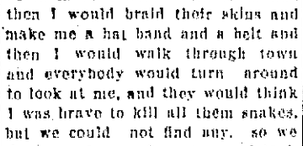
The "Rusted On" Tire

It Shouldn't Be Allowed To Become So, But It Often Is

NEARLY EVERY MOTORIST has had experience with the occasional "lucky" casing, which has escaped trouble for thousands of miles and has remained upon its rim, without being disturbed, for that long period of service. Finally, in its "old age" it becomes susceptible to nails and is punctured. By that time it is almost inseparably rusted to its rim and it is a tough job to remove it to change the tube, even if the rim is of the split type and a good contracting tool is at hand. Under less favorable conditions, the work is still harder. The best way of loosening it is to apply gasoline from a squirt can all the way around on both sides between casing and rim and, after waiting a while, to go around both sides with a heavy screwdriver or tire iron, driving the tool in at short intervals and breaking the rust joint by prying, care being taken not to tear the bead. When the rusted surfaces of fabric and metal are separated, removal usually is easy. It may be claimed that a casing should never be left in place until it becomes "frozen on" and this is true enough. The proper procedure is to remove the tires after every few thousand miles, clean the rims and coat them with graphite or other rustproof material and replace the tires.

FIREWORKS AT MOTOR COMMUTATOR

H. B. writes: When I push down on the starter pedal of my car, the engine turns over satisfactorily, but there are "real fireworks" at the starting motor brushes and its commutator is pitted black in places. Why is this? What are the mica insulations?



Answer: The sparking is probably due to the failure of the brushes to make good contact with the motor commutator, which may be merely because their ends and the commutator are dirty and rough or may be because the brushes have worn short, because the brushes are stuck in their holders or have not sufficient spring pressure or because the mica insulation strips, that separate the copper segments of the commutator, project above the commutator surface. The commutator surface can be smoothed and brightened by holding a piece of fine sandpaper against it, while the motor is running, and then wiping off the dust that is formed. Protruding mica can be removed with a tool.

TIRE AND RIM DIAMETERS

J. F. W. asks: Why are Ford front wheels larger than the rear wheels? I tried a 30x3 inch casing on a rear wheel and it was much too large. How are tires measured? For instance, in the case of a 30x3 inch tire, how is the 30 obtained?

Answer: A 30 inch tire is one that measures approximately 30 inches from tread to tread, measured through the center. This is true of all 30 inch tires, whether 30x3, 30x3½ or 30x4 and thus the inside diameter of a 30 inch tire is smaller in proportion as its cross section is less, the inside diameter of the 30x3 tire being about one inch less than that of the 30x3½. For this reason the diameter of the rim that is to take a 30x3 inch tire must be about an inch greater than that of the rim to take the 30x3½ tire.

ARE NEW PISTONS NEEDED?

W. H. H. writes: Although I have run my ———— car only 4,000 miles, my garageman tells me that I need oversize pistons. It runs all right except for a slight loss of power on steep grades. Have always kept plenty of oil in the engine, changing it every five or six hundred miles. The oil circulation is perfect, but not much oil seems to be used. Do you think that new pistons are required? If so, what size and must the engine be removed to fit them. Why should they wear out so soon?

Answer: If your car was new when you bought it and your lubrication has always been good, and you hear no piston-slap, when you put on gas suddenly, we do not believe that you need new pistons, especially as you say that little oil escapes. If the pistons installed originally were loose or if accurate measurement shows them to have become so, this is another matter. Possibly new rings are required and if your compression is weak, even though the valves are tight, this is probably the case. Until the cylinder bores are measured, no one can tell what size pistons are required. As your cylinder-head is detachable, your cylinder block need not be dismounted. Nothing but serious lubrication failure can explain the wearing out of pistons in 4,000 miles of service.

Questions of general interest to the motorist will be answered by Mr. Clough in this column, space permitting. If an immediate answer is desired, enclose self-addressed, stamped envelope.

$1,223.64 CHAUTAUQUA LOSS IN SEASON OF 1921

Treasurer's Report to Directors Last Night Shows.

FUTURE CHAUTAUQUA IS UP TO NEW BOARD

Deficit Paid with Balance of Former Years and Half of Guarantors' Money.

Marion county's Chautauqua for the season of 1921 showed a loss of $1,223.64, according to the report of the treasurer submitted at a meeting of the board of the Marion County Chautauqua association Friday evening in the office of the chamber of commerce. This loss was paid by using the balance from previous years and one-half of the money offered by the guarantors. The balance on hand now is $23.63.

Expenditures for the season just closed, including the cost of attractions, totaled $3,662.63, while the receipts amounted to $2,439.04. The balance from previous years used to partly pay the loss was $823.27 and the amount furnished by the guarantors was $427.

While no action was taken relative to the holding of a Chautauqua next year, the members of the board expressed an opinion that the Chautauqua should be continued. This question however, will be left for the decision of the new board of directors, which is to be elected at the annual meeting of the association Thursday evening at 7:30 o'clock in the offices of the chamber of commerce. Reports last night showed that 570 tickets already have been pledged for next year.

Actually it costs less to own a Hoover than not to own one. For this efficient cleaner saves the money you now spend in having your carpets cleaned. It eliminates the need or lowers the cost of much household help. As it scatters no dust to soil curtains or walls, it makes less frequent those bills for laundering and redecorating. Even of more importance is the sparing of your rugs from avoidable wear. By its exclusive ability to gently beat out all nap-wearing, embedded grit as it electrically sweeps and cleans by suction. The Hoover will pay for itself over and over in the prolonged life and beauty of your floor coverings.
